GREENSBORO TELEGRAM.

VOL. VI. NO. 113. GREENSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY JUNE 14, 1900. Price Five Cents

BOTH ACTS WERE RATIFIED.

LEGISLATURE TO ADJOURN TONIGHT

To Meet Again July 24th—Reports Show Extravagance and Dishonesty in Penitentiary and Agricultural Department. Novel Liquor Law for Northampton—Supreme Court Adjourns Sine Die.

Special Dispatch to the Telegram.

Raleigh, N. C., June 14.—There was a great rush of new bills in the Legislature today, only two of which passed. It has been decided that the special session shall adjourn at 10 o'clock tonight, until noon on Tuesday, July 24th.

The constitutional amendment and election law acts were both ratified after 11 o'clock last night. Section 5 of the constitutional amendment says: "This amendment is presented and adopted as one individual plan for the regulation of the suffrage, with the intent and purpose to so connect the different parts, and to make them so dependent upon each other, that the whole shall stand or fall together."

The special committee from the Legislature today made a report on the investigation of the penitentiary and Agricultural Department, held last year. The report shows gross extravagance, dishonesty and cruelty at the penitentiary during the last two years of fusion rule, and the most reckless extravagance in the Agricultural Department under the fusionists.

The House adopted resolutions of respect regarding the deaths of Representatives Wall, Trotman and Hart.

A. C. Miller was elected a director of the Morganton school for deaf mutes.

A bill was passed chartering the Salisbury Street Railway.

This afternoon the Supreme Court filed its last opinion for the term and adjourned sine die.

A NOVEL LIQUOR LAW.

The Northampton liquor law has passed. It is entirely new in North Carolina, in that it provides that the Judge of the Superior Court shall grant license for the sale of liquor upon petition of a majority of the voters in any township wherein it is proposed to conduct the business.

The law gives the judge considerable discretion in the matter of granting license. Its operation will be watched with interest.

The Senate passed the House bill taking several counties from the Western Criminal Court circuit with an amendment leaving McDowell county in the district. Buncombe is one of the counties taken out of the district. Senator Cocke said he voted for the bill, but that Representative Locke Craig agreed to shoulder all the responsibility. The people of Asheville and Buncombe county are much interested in this matter.

THE AMENDED AMENDMENT.

Sec. 4. Every person presenting himself for registration shall be able to read and write any section of the constitution in the English language and before he shall be entitled to vote he shall have paid on or before the first day of May of the year in which he proposes to vote his poll tax for the previous year as prescribed by article 5, section 1, of the constitution, but no male person who was on January 1, 1867, or at any time prior thereto, entitled to vote under the laws of any State in the United States wherein he then resided and no lineal descendant of any such person shall be denied the right to register and vote at any election in this State by reason of his failure to possess the educational qualification herein prescribed, provided he shall have registered in accordance with the terms of this section prior to December 1, 1908 The General Assembly shall provide for the registration of all persons entitled to vote without the educational qualifications herein prescribed and shall on or before Jan, 1, 1908, provide for the making of a permanent record of such registration and all persons so registered shall forever thereafter have the right to vote in all elections by the people in this State unless disqualified under section 2 of this article, provided each person shall have paid his poll tax as above required.

Sec. 5. That this amendment to the constitution is presented and adopted as one indivisible plan for the regulation of the suffrage with the intent and purpose to so connect the different parts and to make them so dependent upon each other that the whole shall stand or fall together.

A SUDDEN SUMMONS.

Senator Jackson Dies Suddenly This Morning--An Able Lawyer and Staunch Democrat.

Special Dispatch to the Telegram.

Raleigh, N. C., June 14—Senator Jackson, of Lenoir county, died suddenly at his boarding house in this city this morning. He attended the session of the Senate until 12 o'clock last night, when he went to his room. He got up at 4 o'clock and went out on the porch, where he was found sitting in a chair dead at 6 o'clock this morning.

He was 63 years old and was regarded as an able lawyer. He was a staunch Democrat and served his constituency well. The body was carried to Kinston this afternoon, accompanied by a committee of Senators and Representatives.

Senator Jackson leaves a wife.

LABOR LEADER'S THROAT CUT.

The Work of an Assassin—Another Car Blown Up Last Night in St. Louis.

By Wire to the Telegram.

St. Louis, June 14.—Sherman C. Patterson, the leader of the great car strike and president of the Union, fell under an assassin's knife this morning and is now dying in the hospital.

Elwood Canty attacked him from the rear, stabbing him in the neck and cutting his throat. The assassin was captured.

There was a tremendous explosion of dynamite under a car last night in Olive street, but all passengers and crew escaped.

MASONS ELECT OFFICERS.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

Charlotte, June 14.—The election of officers by the Grand Chapter of North Carolina and their installation consumed most of the time of the Masons yesterday.

The officers for the ensuing year are: Grand High Priest, James K. Norfleet, of Winston; Deputy Grand High Priest, D. E. Allen, of Charlotte; Grand King, Jno. C. Drewry, of Raleigh; Grand Scribe, H. G. Smallbones, of Wilmington; Grand Treasurer, Wm. Simpson, of Raleigh Grand Secretary, H. H. Musoin, of Wilmington; Grand Chaplain, H. F. Chreitzberg, of Charlotte; Grand Capt. of Host, E. O. Toomer, of Wilmington; Grand Principal Sojourner, Wm. Anderson, of Charlotte; Grand Royal Arch Captain, James D. Glenn, of Greensboro; Grand Masters of the Vails, Latte Williams, of Wilson, Frank Boyette, of Goldsboro; and F. T. Meriweather, of Asheville; Grand Lecturer, F. M. Maye, of Wilmington; Correspondent, J. H. Southgate, of Durham; Grand Sentinel, R. H. Bradley, of Raleigh.

The Grand Commandery meet at night at 8 o'clock, after which the members were expected to take part in a trolley ride over the city.

Mr. E. Y. Webb, of Shelby, addressed the Democratic rally here tonight. Hon. B. R. Lacy was detained from coming by the sickness of his wife.

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Mr. Geo. Rutledge was elected secretary and treasurer to fill the vacancies caused by the resignations of Messrs. Geo. B. Hiss and T. S. Franklin. There are now 98 members of this body.

Stole a Negro's Money.

Wilmington Messenger.

Samuel Merrick, colored, who conducts a stall in the Front Street market, says that some one entered his residence, No. 1018 Princess street, on Saturday night and stole $1,600, which he had in an iron safe. The safe was of the old fashion, locked with a key, and the burglar found the key and opened the safe to get the money.

THE BANKERS COME TOGETHER.

THEIR FOURTH ANNUAL SESSION.

Eloquent Address of Welcome by Major Stedman — Happy Response by Mr. Thompson—President's Annual Address of Great Interest — Mr. Fries Reads a Paper on Currency Problem.

The fourth annual convention of the North Carolina Bankers' Association convened in the parlors of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association this morning at 10:30 o'clock. The convention was called to order by President Joseph G. Brown, of the City National Bank, Raleigh, who called on Rev. Dr. E. W. Smith to offer prayer.

President Brown announced that the address of welcome on the part of the citizens of Greensboro would be delivered by Hon. Charles M. Stedman, for whom no introduction was necessary. In beautiful words, elegantly expressed, Major Stedman welcomed the bankers, assuring them that the people of this city were glad to have them here. He spoke of the superior social, moral, material and intellectual advantages enjoyed by Greensboro, saying that it was the proud boast of her citizens that they represent a typical North Carolina town, where simplicity was never accounted a crime nor vulgar arrogance a virtue. He referred to a safe and secure basis of finance as necessary to the strength of a nation.

In behalf of the assembled bankers Hon. Alf. A. Thompson, vice-president of the Commercial and Farmers' Bank of Raleigh, responded to the address of welcome. He referred in most glowing terms to Major Stedman and said that Greensboro had a right to feel proud of this distinguished citizen. Continuing, he said Greensboro had been giving warm receptions for more than a hundred years, the first on reference being found in Caruther's History of North Carolina. The difference between the former reception and the one accorded the bankers, Mr. Thompson said was found in the fact that the British were only too glad to get away, while the bankers are delighted to be here. He spoke of the pleasant homes and beautiful women to be seen in Greensboro, saying they caused the bankers to forget all about dividends, overdrawn accounts, etc. He declared Greensboro to be "an emerald in the lap of the Piedmont hills; the gateway to this beautiful and prosperous section." It was a citizen of Greensboro, the speaker said, who first conceived the idea of building the North Carolina Railroad, and from the time of Morehead until the present she has continued to furnish big men of broad and strong minds. In glowing terms he spoke of the splendid work being accomplished by the State Normal and Industrial College and Greensboro Female College, nor did he neglect to mention the splendid banking facilities of the city and the high stand taken by the manufacturers, merchants, ministers, lawyers, physicians and other professional and business men.

The president declared the convention open for business and ordered a roll call, which showed the following members of the association to be present:

John M. Miller, Jr., of the Commercial and Farmers Bank, of Charlotte, secretary of the association; Thomas Martin, of the Wachovia Loan and Trust Company, Winston; Thomas J. Latham, cashier of the Bank of Washington; Joseph G. Brown, president of the City National Bank of Raleigh and president of the association; W. A. Hunt, cashier of the City National Bank of Henderson; W. L. Hunt, acting cashier of the Atlantic National Bank of Wilmington; W. H. McDonald, cashier of the Bank of Enfield; E. F. Young, of the Merchants and Farmers Bank of Dunn; B. S. Jerman, cashier of the Commercial and Farmers Bank, Raleigh; F. H. Biggs, cashier of the National Bank of Raleigh; J. P. Sawyer, president of the Battery Park Bank, Asheville; A. G. Brenizer, cashier of the Commercial and National Bank of Charlotte; W. T. Old, cashier of the First National Bank of Elizabeth City; J. C. Broswell, president of the Planters Bank of Rocky Mount; W. J. Byerly, cashier of the Farmers and Merchants Bank, Louisburg; G.

KRUGER KEEPS STEAMED UP.

A Train in Readiness to Move Him at Any Time—Buller and Roberts Help Each Other.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, June 14—The war office has issued the following from Roberts dated Pretoria June 13th, afternoon: "The enemy have evacuated their strong position during the night and retired eastward, Bullers forces and mine afforded each other mutual assistance. Our occupation of Pretoria caused numbers of the Boers to withdraw to Laings Nek, and Buller's advance to Volkarust made them feel that their rear will shortly be endangered.

London, June 14, 3:50 a. m.—The dispatch from Lord Roberts, clearing up the situation at Pretoria and along the communication stands alone. Military observers, noting that no mention is made of prisoners, assume that General Dewett got away with his forces practically intact. General Buller entered Volksrust Wednesday, passed through Charleston and encamped near Laing's Nek. The tunnel was not much damaged. Both ends were blown up, but the engineers think that repairs can be effected in about four days. The advance troops of General Buller saw the Boer rear guard, four miles distant, yesterday. It was estimated that 8,000 Boers were withdrawing. The towns-people at Ermelo counted 15 guns.

Three hundred Free Staters, released from guarding Van Reenan's pass, have gone to join President Steyn's cammando, in the eastern part of Orange River Colony. General Rundle has sent notice to the Free Staters that, unless they surrender by June 15th their farms and other possessions will be confiscated.

President Kruger, according to a dispatch from Lorenzo Marquez, keeps a locomotive with steam up attached to the car in which he concentrates the executive offices of the government, and that he intends to leave Machadorp soon and to establish the Transvaal capital at Nel Spruit, in the mountains, a fine defensive region. The State printing press is operating at Machadorp, producing leaflets containing war news for distribution among the Boers. It is again reported at Lorenzo Marquez that the Britis are advancing through Swaziland. Lord Roberts, it appears, however, countermanded the order given to Strathcoba's horse to land on the coast and to penetrate to the Transvaal through the Swazi country.

Resolutions on Sabbath Observance.

Some time since all the pastors of the city preached on Sabbath observance. In the same interests a union meeting of the churches of South Greensboro was held in Centenary M. E. church Sunday evening, May the 20th. Addresses were given by Dr. Beall, Rev. Mr. Hartsell and Prof. P. P. Claxton. At the close of the meeting the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas the desecration of the Sabboth by the sale of various kinds of merchandise on Sunday is evidently increasing in our city,

Resolved that the city Aldermen be requested to enforce rigidly section 156 of Ordinances of the city adopted in 1895, and if necessary make penalty stronger for its violation.

The pastors of South Greensboro were requested to lay the Resolution before the Aldermen and the pastors of North Greensboro were invited to co-operate.

The resolution will be presented to the Aldermen at their next meeting.

The Aycock Hat.

Winston Sentinel.

The "Aycock Hat" is now on the market in Raleigh. It is manufactured in Baltimore. It is a stylish crush hat made in pearl and brown colors. On the silk lining is a splendid picture of Mr. Aycock, and beneath it his autograph. Over the picture is printed the words: "North Carolina's next Governor."

What the Word Boxer Means.

North Carolina Christian Advocate.

The Boxers are called in the Chinese language, as we learn from a contemporary, I Ho Twan Whei, interpreted, The Righteous Peace Fist Society, which indicates that they were organized, primarily, to resist in pugilistic style what they conceived to be wrongs done in the name of right.

2,000 TROOPS OF EACH NATION.

MINISTERS BEGGING FOR THAT MANY

Thirty Thousand Chinese Troops Drawn up Outside Pekin With Their Guns Trained Upon the British and American Legations—Minister Conger Joins in the Demand for 2,000 Troops of Each Nationality—France and Russia Together.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, June 14—A special from Shanghai says that the position of the legations at Pekin is most critical. Thirty thousand Chinese troops are drawn up out the gates of the city to oppose the relief force, with guns trained on the American, British and Japanese legations. The American, Russian and Japanese ministers have sent couriers to Tien-Tsin asking for two thousand troops of each nationality.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA TOGETHER.

Tein-Tsin, June 14—Eleven hundred Russians have arrived here. More are on the way. The force of marines working along the railway is making slow progress owing to the damage done by the Boxers. The repairs are carried out by British and Americans marines alone. Pekin reports that an agreement between France and Russia binds them to a common policy.

RIOTING SPREADING.

Shanghai, June 14—A telegram from Chung-King says that a riot has occured at Yunnan-Fu. The buildings of the China Inland Mission was partly destroyed. The Bible' Christian and Roman Catholic missions were utterly destroyed. The missionaries arrived safely at Yamen.

London, June 14, 4:20 a. m.—The Chinese are entrenching outside of Pekin to oppose the advance of the international column. A dispatch from Tien-Tsin, dated Thursday, June 12, says: "I learn that the Chinese have guns trained on the American mission and the British legation. Two thousand Russian cavalry and infantry, with artillery, have landed at Taku."

The Shanghai correspondents report that United States Minster Conger, by courier, asks for 2,000 United States troops. The question of provisioning the relief force is already difficult, and it is predicted at Shanghai that it will become acute. The leading members of the Reform party, representing 15 out of 18 provinces, are at Shanghai. A dispatch to The Daily Mail, dated yesterday, says they are sending a petition to the United States, Great Britain and Japan, praying those powers to take joint action against any attempt on the part of the other powers to partition the empire, and they implore the powers thus addressed to rescue the Emperor.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that the ships of the Russian Pacific squadron on the active list, as well as those at Vladivostock, have been ordered to proceed, with all haste, to Chinese waters.

The Foreign Office confirms the report of an engagement between troops of the international column and the Boxers, on Monday. It says that about 35 Chinese were killed.

LIGHTNING'S WORK.

Mrs. Taylor Has a Narrow Escape From Death—A Severe Shock.

During the thunder storm yesterday afternoon Mrs. A. M. Taylor, of Guilford College, had a narrow escape from a horrible death. An immense oak, about three and a half feet in diameter and standing about 50 feet in front of of Mrs. Taylor's residence, was struck by lightning and utterly destroyed. Mrs. Taylor was sitting inside the house and suffered a severe shock, it being at first thought that she had been killed.

A 'phone message was sent to her son and daughter, Mr. F. N. and Miss Ida Taylor, who reside in Greensboro, and they drove out as quickly as possible. When they reached their mother she was unconscious, but soon rallied. This morning she felt no ill effects from the sock beyond a little stiffness in her joints.

DANIEL FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

SELECTION WOULD BE A WISE MOVE.

A Very Fine Spun, Fairy Like, Piece of Imagination by Our Washington Correspondent as to the Availability and Suitability of the Virginian.

Special Dispatch to the Telegram.

Washington, June 14—The suggestion of the name of Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia, as the Democratic nominee for Vice-President, is becoming very popular. His selection would be agreeable to the old line Democracy, and at the same time he would doubtless be acceptable to Mr. Bryan, who enjoys the Senator's personal friendship. In case the Democratic ticket should be successful, Senator Daniel would possess all the qualification for a presiding officer of the United States Senate, bringing both ability and dignity to the chair, qualifications which are absolutely essential to the President of the Senate, and which traits were possessed by Mr. Hobart, and which tended to make him an admirable and popular presiding officer. Then, and more important, in the event that Mr. Daniel should be called upon, under the constitution, to fulfill the duties of President, his broad experience in national affairs and great legal ability and learning, and wide acquaintance, would make him a suitable chief executive, and the country would be in safe hands under his guidance. In selecting a vice-presidential candidate these poin's should and probably will be the chief elements entering into the question of a running ma e for Col. Bryan.

The choice of Senator Daniel would also be a wise political move. The South has not, since the close of the civil strife been honored by the selection of a candidate on the presidential ticket, and his selection would be hailed as the dawning of a new era of good fellowship, and of good feeling between all sections of the Union—for which the Democratic party has striven to bring about. Senator Daniel has been in close touch with the Eastern Democracy on several occasions, and his selection would be satisfactory to such leaders as ex-Senator Gorman, ex-Senator Hill, ex-Senator Murphy, and others, with many of whom the Senator came into personal contact while the former were serving in the Senate. The Virginia Senator is known and loved all through the South, and his nomination would insure a solid South, preventing any electoral votes in that quarter from slipping away. The Senator is known and loved almost as much in the States of West Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland, as he is in the Old Dominion, which he represents so ably in the United States Senate. His nomination for the Vice-Presidency would go a long ways towards securing the electoral tickets of West Virginia and Maryland—North Carolina will probably be safe in any contingency. West Virginia and Maryland are absolutely essential to Democratic success, for if they are lost to Democracy, the Republicans can win, even should the unexpected happen, and New York should go Democratic. Wise politics would therefore seem to dictate that in the selection of the vice-presidential nominee, special reference should be paid to these two States. The nomination of Senator Daniel would also prove popular in Indiana, and other western States, where the Senator's reputation is widelw known, he having frequently, appeared on the lecture platform, and stump in these States. Another point in Senator Daniel's favor in his matchless oratory. If he is nominated the vice-presidential candidate would not be a mere figurehead, as was in the case in the campaign of 1896. He would add both strength and dignity to the ticket.

It is not known that Senator Daniel is an active candidate, but no man has ever refused the Democratic nomination, although the Republican nomination seems to be shied at by certain distinguished gentlemen this year. The Virginia delegation will be found at the convention urging the nomination, and it is said that they will be reinforced by the delegates from North Carolina, West Virginia, and by nearly the entire South The Georgia delegates, it is reported, through the influence of Senator Clay, of that State will be solidly for the nomination of the Virginia Senator, and the same is reported to be the tendency among the Florida and other southern delegates to the Kansas City convention.

Providence has given us hope and sleep as a compensation for the many cares of life.—Voltaire.

GRANT AS A SLAVEHOLDER.

It is no doubt true that the only slaves Gen. Grant ever owned were such as he received as part of his wife's dowry when he married her. Her father, Gen. Dent was a native of Maryland and a wealthy merchant of St. Louis, and afterward a gentleman farmer near that city. Of course, he owned slaves, and no doubt when Capt. Grant married his daughter in 1848 he gave them a few house servants, and afterward probably some field servants. It is not at all likely that Gen. Grant ever bought or sold a slave.

If he owned any slaves when the war broke out, as Mrs. Grant is reported saying, they must have been hired out in St. Louis, as they could not have been with him at Galena, Ill., where he went in April, 1860, to become a clerk in his father's hardware and leather store. The father was at that time in Covington, Ky. In a letter to Gen. James G. Wilson, written from Frankfort, March 20, 1868, he said: "After Ulysses's farming and real estate experiments in St. Louis county, Mo., failed to be self-supporting he came to me at this place (Covington) for advice and assistance. I referred him to Simpson my next oldest son, who had charge of my Galena business and who was staying with me on account of ill-health. Simpson sent him to the Galena store, to stay until something else might turn up in his favor, and told him he must confine his wants within $800 a year and that if that would not support him he must draw what it lacked from the rent of his house and the hire of his negroes in St. Louis." From this it appears he did own slaves at that time.

"Jumbled"

Among the many symptoms of eye defect none is more tryidg on thot delicate organ, and uone more alarming to those famila, with the eye and its ailments, than is that condition wheae objects become "jumbled" at close range. At times clear and distinct; again blurred and waverase. This is usually a condition brought about by long abuse; is a timely warning that the eyes have almost reached the limit of endurance. See

CIVIL WAR A MISNOMER.

Salisbury Sun.

"Editor Sun: Allow me to protest against the use of the term, 'A Drama of the Civil War' as applied to my play, 'Under the Southern Cross,' in your otherwise complimentary notice of it in your issue of Saturday. It is not a drama of the 'The Civil War' for the very good reason that there was no such thing as a civil war. It is by the use of expressions like this that the true facts of history are obscured in the minds of many people. To protest against such obscuring is one of the chief objects of the Daughters of the Confederacy, and I had no idea how general was the use of this thoroughly objectionable descriptive term until I have been obliged to protest over and over against its application to my play.

"Let me, once for all, remind all who speak of it that a civil war, in the only correct sense of the term, is a war of parties or factions within one State, while the war between the Confederate States and the United States of America was distinctly a war between the different States, each with its regular government, executive, congress, courts, army and navy. Let us, then, have an end of imitating the North by incorrectly calling this great conflict in which the political liberty of the South perished, a civil war. We are a subjugated people, but we should never forget that we once solemnly asserted our right to declare ourselves a a separate people from our agressors, and maintained that right in war for four long, glorious years.

CHRISTAIN REID.

INFORMATION FOR GENEALOGISTS.

How and Where to Learn all About Your Grandfather and Great-great Grandfather.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

If they were North Carolinians living west of a line from Granville county to Wilmington try—"The Life of Dr. David Caldwell," and the "First and Second Series of the Old North State," by Dr. Eli W. Caruthers. Then read "Foote's Sketches of North Corolina," especially if your progenitors were Presbyterians, and Wheeler's History. Failing in these, search "The Colonial and State Records of North Carolina."

These books contain very very many names still familiar in this State and in Tennessee and in the West and Southwest.

Read the books and pamphlets issued by the Guilford Battle Ground Association. These will be found to be fuller and to have condensed much from the earlier authors in a correct and much better form than that in which the matter was originally published: as the records throw light that the early authors did not possess.

Three, or perhaps four thousand of our ancestors were in the battle of Guilford Courthouse, under General Greene one hundred and nineteen years ago. Their descendants, even in this State, are now as the sands of the sea. We shall have our annual grand celebration at the Battle Ground park on the fourth of July next, and are using our best efforts to make it worthy of the place and day. General Boynton, U. S. Commissioner of the Chickamauga National Park, will address us, and we hope through his broad patriotism to enlist the sympathies of the general government in North Carolina's efforts to adorn and preserve this spot where British power was broken in the Southern department, and by consequence, soon in America.

Come one and all and help alorg the worthy cause. Very truly,

JOSEPH M. MOREHEAD.

Mr. Aycock's Example.

Wilmington Messenger.

The Democratic candidate for governor, Mr. Aycock, has set an excellent example to all candidates in his advocacy of more and better education for North Carolina. It is a wise step and good will come of it. Mr. Aycock is not narrow and insular and State-bound. He favors a school system that embraces all, from the lowest to the highest—from the primaries to the culminating university. The educational movement in North Carolina begun between 1840 and 1850. Dr. S. B. Weeks said that Calvin H. Wiley had given to North Carolina the very best common school system that could be found in any southern state prior to the great war. This is strictly true. North Carolina led its southern sisters here as it led them in many things, and in the teeth of their jibes and names of reproach.

THE MEN HUNTING GAME.

COL. BADEN-POWELL HAS WRITTEN A BOOK ON IT.

He Declares It a Great Sport, and Tells How to Bag Your Enemy Without Being Bagged—Extracts From "Aids to Scouting."

Colonel Baden-Powell declares that "man-stalking" is the best game of which he knows, and the Colonel has had experience enough as a hunter of both two and four footed animals to know. He has written a book called "Aids to Scouting," and in it he clearly lays down the rules of the sport.

The scout's ten commandments, he says, are pluck and self-reliance, ability to find his way in a strange country and use his eyes and ears. He must be able to keep himself hidden, track the enemy, get across country, take care of himself and his horse, and report his information.

The most reliable assistance in finding your way is the compass, but in South Africa, where there is much ironstone in the ground, a compass becomes very unreliable. The sun by day gives you the east in his rising, and west in his setting, and north or south at noon, as you happen to be south or north of the equator.

On starting on a reconnaissance, if you see a mountain to the northward it will serve as a guide. Similarly, when you pass any conspicuous object, like a withered tree, broken gate or a strangely shaped rock, keep it in your mind. On passing such landmarks do not omit to look back, and see what their appearance is from the other side.

A moving enemy is easy to see, but one who stands still, or who is the same color as the ground around him, is very hard to see for the unpracticed eye. Common sense and a little reflection will often suggest to you the most likely points to look to find him.

For instance, you come across three fresh paths trodden in the grass on the South African veldt, all running parallel to each other, at a few yards distance. By having studied the habits of your enemy you will know at once that this means three companies have passed that way on the march, as generally they march in single file, each company following its own leader. If the footmarks show that the men were wearing sandals it means they were on a long march; if barefooted, they were not going far.

It is often a useful thing, after passing a place where you suspect an enemy to be hiding, to turn very suddenly and look for him. You may catch him looking out less carefully.

In selecting your lookout place, always be careful to see that there is more than one way out of it, so that, if an enemy cuts you off at one you can escape by the other. Thus a tower is a tempting place to look out from, but if an enemy comes and stands guard at the foot of it you cannot get away, whereas the roof of a house will give you an almost equally good view and possibly several different ways of getting to the ground.

Trees, for the same reason as towers, must be used with caution. Remember that men are very apt to forget to look up in trees for you—unless they see your footmarks on the ground leading to a tree. I have stood under a tree with an enemy up in it, and never noticed him till he fired down at me.

Tracking means following up footmarks. It is called "spooring" in South Africa. Scouting without tracking is like bread-and-butter without the bread. The first thing to learn is to distinguish the pace at which a horse or man was moving when he made the track. It will be seen that a horse walking leaves pairs of footmarks, each hind foot coming close to the impression of the fore foot. At a trot each pair of footmarks is at a greater distance from the next, and the ground is more forcibly struck, the toe more deeply indented in the ground than at a walk. At a canter there are two single footmarks, and then a pair; at a gallop single footmarks deeply indented.

With a man walking, the whole flat of the foot comes equally on the ground, the feet a little under one yard apart. Running, the toes are more deeply indented in the ground, and the feet are more than a yard apart. Native trackers boast that not only can they tell a person's sex and age by their tracks, but also their characters. They say that people who turn out their toes much are generally liars. It was a trick with highwaymen of old, and with horse-stealers more recently, to put their horses' shoes on wrong way round, in order to deceive trackers who might try to follow them up; but a good tracker would not be taken in. Similarly, thieves often walk backward. In tracking where spoor is difficult to see—such as on hard ground, or in grass—note the direction of the last footprint that you can see, and then look on in the same direction, but well ahead of you—say, 20 to 30 yards—and in the grass you will generally see the blades bent or trodden, and on hard ground possibly stones displaced or scratched, and so on—small signs, which, seen in a line one behind the other, give a kind of track that otherwise would not be noticed. I once tracked a bicycle on a hard macadam road, where it really made no impression at all, but by looking along the surface of the road for a long distance ahead of me, under the rising sun, as it happened, the line it had taken was quite visible through the almost invisible coating of dew upon the ground. Standing on the track, and looking down upon it close to my feet, I could not see the slightest sign of it.

HER LIFE VOCATION.

She Will Sing Gospel Songs for Religious Work.

Miss Ruth Cordis Long, niece of Secretary of the Navy John D. Long, has chosen as her vocation in life gospel singing. Her work in this line, in connection with recent revival services at a Worcester, Mass., church, confirmed her inclination toward this calling, which has dated back two years. She visited Washington last winter and by invitation sang several selections before President and Mrs. McKinley. Personally Miss Long is a young woman of much charm. Her enthusiasm in her work proceeds from earnest and sincere conviction that her voice can be made a powerful influence for good in connection with evangelical and temperance work. Her voice is a rich, deep contralto. At the age of seventeen she was brought out as a concert singer in Portland, Me., by Annie Louise Cary. Her singing then showed great promise, and her friends urged her to make the operatic stage her aim. Her family discouraged this, however, and Miss Long took up concert singing, in which she has been very successful.

Thirty years ago there was only about 25 explosive compounds known. Now there are more than 1,100.

Isa Quack Doctor More Dangerous than a Quack Plumber?

When you are sick why is it that you do not peddle out the job of dosing you, to the lowest bidder? You would get it done much cheaper than your family physician would do it, but some QUACK DOCTOR would get the job. Your plumbing is of vital importance and you can no more afford to have your plumbing done by a quack plumber than to call in a quack doctor when sick.

Give us your work and it will be done properly and price will be reasonable.

RHEUMATISM

Distorts Muscles, Shatters Nerves, Stiffens Joints.

Is due to an acid poison which gains access to the blood through failure of the proper organs to carry off and keep the system clear of all morbid, effete matter. This poison through the general circulation is deposited in the joints, muscles and nerves, causing the most intense pain.

Rheumatism may attack with such suddenness and severity as to make within a few days a healthy, active person helpless and bed-ridden, with distorted limbs and shattered nerves; or it may be slow in developing, with slight wandering pains, just severe enough to make one feel uncomfortable; the tendency in such cases is to grow worse, and finally become chronic.

Like other blood diseases, Rheumatism is often inherited, and exposure to damp or cold, want of proper food, insufficient clothing, or anything calculated to impair the health, will frequently cause it to develop in early life, but more often not until middle age or later. In whatever form, whether acute or chronic, acquired or inherited, Rheumatism is Strictly a Blood Disease, and no liniment or other external treatment can reach the trouble. Neither do the preparations of potash and mercury, and the various mineral salts, which the doctors always prescribe, cure Rheumatism, but ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

A remedy which builds up the general health and at the same time rids the system of the poison is the only safe and certain cure for Rheumatism. S. S. S., made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful solvent, purifying properties, attacks the disease in the right way, and in the right place—the blood—and quickly neutralizes the acid and dissolves all poisonous deposits, stimulates and reinforces the overworked, worn-out organs, and clears the system of all unhealthy accumulations. S. S. S. cures permanently and thoroughly, and keeps the blood in a pure, healthy state.

Mr. J. O. Malley, 123 W. 15th Street, Indianapolis, Ind., for eighteen months was so terribly afflicted with Rheumatism he was unable to feed or dress himself. Doctors said his case was hopeless. He had tried fifty-two prescriptions that friends had given him, without the slightest relief. A few bottles of S. S. S. cured him permanently, and he has never had a rheumatic pain since. This was five years ago.

We will send free our special book on Rheumatism, which should be in the hands of every sufferer from this torturing disease. Our physicians have made blood and skin diseases a life study, and will give you any information or advice wanted, so write them fully and freely about your case. We make no charge whatever for this service. Address, SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

WELCOME TO THE BANKERS.

Greenboro extends the welcome hand today and tomorrow to the members of the North Carolina Bankers' Association, wishing them not only interesting and profitable business sessions, but enjoyable leisure hours, as well, while they are in the Gate City. The importance of the business which they represent cannot be overestimated, and it calls into its service men of as high talent, integrity and character, as the Commonwealth affords.

A DOCKERY OUT OF LINE.

Mr. A. Settle Dockery, the young son of Mr. Henry C. Dockery, is very much out of line with his family in politics this year. In 1898 Mr. Dockery took no part in politics. This year he is supporting the constitutional amendment, and is making vigorous speeches in its advocacy. Like other members of his family, Mr. Dockery is a man of good ability, and a gentleman. It should be a source of gratification to those who know him, that he has had the courage to break loose from his association and training, and follow the dictates of his heart instead. In a speech at Monroe Monday, Mr. Dockery thus poniards the Republican pretenses:

"The Republicans are going around howling and pretending that they are such good friends to the poor, uneducated white man. They are sending out circulars all over the State trying to mislead you. It is all false from beginning to end about their being your friend. They care nothing for you, only to get your vote."

BOXERS AND MISSIONARIES.

There seems to be no doubt that the bottom of the trouble in China is hatred for the missionaries. Anything can be tolerated by a people with greater fortitude than an attack upon their religion. While the outbreak now is against everything foreign, doubtless all things that have come among them from the outside is looked upon by the Chinese as so many adjuncts to the teachings of the foreign religious devils. And thus, when they see railroads being built and other modern instruments gaining ground, they conclude that it is only a question of time till the foreigns will be able to force upon them the religion which they refuse to voluntarily accept. The question of foreign missions is, practically, a mooted one, but theoretically an unassailable propsition.

If we have something better than the heathen, something uplifting for this world and carrying salvation for the next, it is manifestly our duty to give it to them, at least to tell them of it and give them an opportunity of embracing it. In practice, they have accepted comparatively little from our teaching, and purely as a matter of religion no impression has been made upon them. So little, indeed, has been accomplished, that many observers think it is a hopeless task, and advise giving it over. But the missionaries and the people who support them grow more hopeful and enthusiastic every year, and every year more money is collected and spent for this purpose than was the previous year.

The missionary, the product of fervid faith and enthusiasm, is, in a sense, a hero; the Boxer, a child of ignorance, is a vessel of weakness and deserves pity. The man, who, for the sake of his religion, can banish himself from his own country and pass a life of toil and danger among the ignorant, filthy, hostile, people, who deride his message and jest at h's earnestness challenges admiration. Yet he goes on weeks, months, years, a life time, telling them the same unbelieved, misunderstood, and to his hearers, contemptible story. The missionary has not enough of our respect and admiration.

On the other hand, the Boxer, for practically nearly all Chinamen are Boxers in secret sympathy or open declaration, has too little of our sympathy. He has neither the world's respect nor esteem. Ignorance and weakness make him the contemptible man and nation of the globe. But this very ignorance and weakness should challenge our sympathy. The Chinaman is merely the unit of an immobile mass, without independence or individuality. Steeped in the ignorance of ages, he is the simple automaton of heredity; he is a slave to thousands of generations of dead men, and their ghosts rule him completely. We should not become too much exasperated at the present outbreak. There is great need of Christian forbearance in thinking of, and dealing with, the matter. The Christian powers should, and will put down the rebellion, and they should take a guarantee for the future, but they should not be unnecessarily harsh. The Boxer is only acting according to his lights.

The Republican contention that the fifth section of the amendment would be declared unconstitutional, and thus the educational clause be made to operate fully upon white men, has now fallen down. By the action of the Legislature in amending the amendment so that all parts of it must live or die together, there is really not one argument left in Republican hands to be urged against it. No doubt the great activity of the Republicans has been due to the fact that they knew that this thing would be done, and they were consequently in a great hurry to completely poison the minds of white people in advance, trusting that the poison, once placed, could not be eradicated. In this, too, they have failed.

In transacting the business for which it was intended, and adjourning, as it will tonight, the General Assembly has acted wisely. It was to be expected that a great deal of small and local work would be attempted, and it is quite right that it was sat down upon.

The bill to regulate the hours of labor, which we printed yesterday, stating that it was introduced by Representative Leigh of Pasquotank, was introduced by Mr. Giles of Chatham, instead, and at the request of Mr. J. C. Meekins, Jr., of Greensboro.

We are not able to offer visitors any "trolley rides" yet, but by nextspring we shall be able to take them whisking throught the air to some suburban resort, on wide spreading cars with the usual fancy trappings.

A Success in Spite of the Elements.

A gentleman remarked yesterday evening that whenever there was need of rain arrangements should be made with the firemen to give a lawn party It certainly seems as if the announcement of a lawn party by the firemen always brought rain.

But in spite of the rain of yesterday afternoon and last night, quite a crowd enjoyed themselves at the Southside Hose Company's lawn party. A good deal of cream and other refreshments were sold, the receipts amounting to $50. Under the circumstances, this is very encouraging.

The lawn party will be repeated tonight on the lawn of the Asheboro Street Graded Schools, and the firemen hope to receive the liberal patronage of their friends. A lot of nice cream has been prepared, as well as other refreshments, and the lawn will be in splendid condition, nice and dry. Go out and encourage the boys and enjoy yourself.

A MATTER OF LUCK.

When We Disregard One Sign We Believe in Another.

When a business man was starting on a short journey recently his wife called him aside.

"William," she said, earnestly, "don't you think of going to-day. Put it off till to-morrow or next week. Something awful will happen if you disregard my advice, and I know it."

"What's the matter with you? Been having dreams or consulting one of these second-sight frauds.

"No, dear, but this is Friday, and it is simply inviting trouble to make a start on Friday."

"Oh, pshaw! Will you never get over such foolishness? What's the day got to do with it? Honest, it makes me tired—this everlasting superstition and belief in signs. If I paid attention to all such things we'd starve, for I'd have no time to do business. Put all of them out of your head, little one. I've had just as good luck on Friday as any other day, and the only serious accident I ever had was on Monday. I can't disarrange my plans just to humor a whim. I'll come back just as safe and sound as I leave. Good-bye."

He went and she sat in the bay window looking just as disconsolate as though her worst fears had been realized. At the end of twenty minutes she saw her husband hurrying toward the house, carying his hat in his hand and mopping his forehead. She ran to the door, pale with apprehension.

"What is it, William? Tell me, quick. I can bear anything as long as you are all right."

"Where's that old blue vest? That lucky dime of mine is in one of the pockets. I'd stay at home before I'd go without it."—Detroit Free Press.

Parental Diplomacy.

"But what are your objections to the young man?" asked the mother.

"None," answered the other half of the management of the young woman.

"Then why did you refuse his request for Ethel's hand?"

"Only for the dear child's good. If he have any spirit at all he will go ahead and marry her anyhow, and if he don't she is well rid of him."—Indianapolis Press.

THE BANKERS COME TOGETHER.

W. Mountcastle, of the Bank of Lexington; W. H. Mendenhall cashier of the Bank of Lexington; J. C. Gibson, cashier of the Cabarrus Savings Bank, Concord; J. Elwood Cox, president of the Commercial National Bank of High Point; J. Armfield, Jr. cashier of the Bank of Randolpo, Asheboro; W. A. Blair, president of the People's National Bank, Winston, and J. W. Fries, of Winston.

The following out of town visitors were prsent: Hon. W. H. Worth, State treasurer; L. B. Kemp, president of the Commercial and Farmers' National Bank of Baltimore; W. P. Shelton, representing the Merchants' National Bank of Richmond, Va; O. T. Smith, of Baltimore, and F. Spiekerman, of St. Louis.

Upon motion of Mr. G. W. Mountcastle, of Lexington, a vote of thanks was tendered to the president and the secretary and treasurer for the elegant manner in which they had prepared and issued the proceedings of the association.

The annual address of the president followed. It contained many valuable suggestions and references to the work of the association and was listened to with more than passing interest. President Brown declared the favorable condition of the banks of the State to be a subject of congratulation, since bank statements reflect the general prosperlty of the people. There is a mistaken notion that the banks are most prosperous wnen times are hard; that when money is scarce and interest rates are high the banks reap a rich harvest, but such is not the case. Speaking of the prejudice against banks existing in some quarters on account of a belief that banks are greedy corporations, Mr. Brown said:

"As a matter of fact the bankers of today are not rich men. They are men who, just as much as 'the man with the hoe,' are 'by the sweat of their faces' endeavoring to earn an honest support for their wives and children.  Their sympathies are with the people because they are of the people."

Reference was made to the last reports of the banks of North Carolina, which showed a capital of $5,609,272 09; surplus and profits, $2,398,732.96; deposits, $19,259,894.16; total resources, $29,346,090. This is an excellent showing for North Carolina and indicates that she is bravely rallying from her former impoverished condition

President Brown stated that since the passage of the 6 per cent. interest law more mills have been built, more manufactories established and more industrial enterprises inaugurated than ever before in the history of North Carolina.

The subject of taxation was touched upon briefly, Mr. Brown saying our laws on this subject are far from clear and frequently in conflict. He suggested that it would be a wise innovation of the Legislature, at one session, to appoint a committee to revise the present tax laws and present, at the succeeding session, a well matured revenue bill.

Brief references were also made to trusts and the financial system of the country.

The report of the secretary and treasurer showed the association to be in a flourishing condition, financially and otherwise. There are 84 members of the association, three-fourths of the banks in the State being represented. During the past fiscal year there has been no bank failure in North Carolina, and no member of the association has died.

Mr. John W. Fries, of Winston-Salem, read a paper on "Currency Problems in 1900." It was a very valuable and interesting production, the fruit of a well informed mind, and will appear in full in Saturday's edition of the Telegram.

After some discussion of matters pertaining to the interest of the association, an adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Tonight a reception will be tendered the bankers in the club rooms of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. The Daughters of the Confederacy will serve refreshments.

CAPTAIN DICK

"Captain Dick Wells and Mrs. Wells, formerly Jack Hall, will leave next week for San Francisco en route for Portland, Ore."

This is the item that headed the personal column of the Arizona papers recently.

Back of this is a story that has set all Arizona agog—the tale of a woman masquerading in cowboy attire, lassoing cattle, taking part in shooting scrapes, leading the wild, free adventurous life of the Arizona vaquero—the story of a woman who, because her father had been hanged as a horse thief, changed her name, hid her sex, and the beating of hoof and the whizzing of bullet, sought to drown the memory of the disgrace. As a fitting finale, when her sex was discovered, she married "Captain Dick," the bravest and boldest cowboy in all Arizona.

It is a story kindled with strange and dramatic incidents that could occur nowhere save in Arizona, where still puts fiction to blush and boot and spur have not altogether given away to patent leathers.

It was just about a year ago that a slender, clean-shaven youth asked for work at one of the big cattle ranches near Williams. Captain Dick, who was the leader of the cowboys, engaged the "tenderfoot," and "Jack Hall," the name the applicant for work gave, won his spurs in the annual rodeo for which the cowboys were then preparing.

By day Jack sat his horse rounding up the cattle and at night slept on the ground. He was quiet and distant towards the other cowboys, but for the most part they liked him. Before the first month had passed he had an opportunity to show his mettle.

A number of cowboys were spending the night in a typical Arizona town—one saloon per every fifteen inhabitants. Jack Hall, in search of Captain Dick, dropped into one of the saloons. A cowboy, revolver in hand, was acting as master of ceremonies, while in the middle of the floor the barkeeper, half dead from fatigue, was doing a dance, to the amusement of the rest of the cowboys.

When the barkeeper attempted to stop swirling his feet the cowboy shouted for more dancing, and the master of ceremonies encouraged the barkeeper by popping his pistol dangerously near his feet.

Jack Hall watched the scene in silence until he saw that the barkeeper reached the limit of his endurance. Then he deftly wrenched the pistol from the cowboys hand and, turning it on him, said: "If you want any more dancing, do it yourself."

The cowboy snatched another one, but Jack Hall was too quick for him. There was a quick, sharp report and a cry of pain. The cowboy was wounded in the right arm.

Then Jack Hall did a strange thing. His were the fingers that bandaged his adversary's wounds. He attended to him, even cutting his food for him, until the cowboy was well. After that he was christened Nurse Jack and more often called simply "Nurse."

He had an almost womanish way of caring for them if they fell ill.

"He ain't a drinker and he can't play cards worth a hill of frijoles, but he's all right dosing medicine and such things," explained the cowboys.

Moreover he was all right when it came to handling a horse or a revolver, which after all counts more points in the cowboy's estimation than bottle or cards. Beside he had as a firm ally Captain Dick, which, in Arizona, is the open sesame to any cowboy's friendship.

Captain Dick did win his position among the Arizona cowboys without first proving his strength of his good right arm. Captain Dick has never been a believer in the law's delay. He has assisted at more hangings than any sheriff in the territory. Nor hve the victims of his sense of justice afterward been proven innocent. Captain Dick makes sure of the offender's guilt before he ties the knot.

It was in 1882, while he was still very young, that Captain Dick's popularity reached the high water mark. General Fremont, the new Governor of the Territory had introduced a bill in the Legislature, which was then in session, asking that several thousand dollars be put aside to equip a company of militia to be sent to the southern part of the territory to subdue the cowboys.

The older inhabitants and members of the Legislature scouted the idea. The request for the militia had come from a New England green grocer, who had not yet become acclimated to the cowboy and his harmless Fourth of July antics in town.

"What will the militia do?" demanded the legislators.

"Shoot the cowboys if they misbehave. Order even at the price of blood," replied the erstwhile pathfinder.

Then a member from a Yavapai County read a letter from "Captain Dick," inviting the militia to come to the southern part of the territory.

There are members of that legislature who treasure a copy of that letter to this day, and challenge any one to produce anything as funny from Mark Twain or Bill Nye. Capt. Dick proved his sense of humor and his cunning with the pen as well as pistols. Several of the legislators favored sending the militia just so as to give Capt. Dick a chance to write the militia, epitaphs, which was the boon he asked for bestowing the hospitality of the cowboys.

Several years ago a number of cowboys rode into Prescott and, after frightening all the barkeepers of the saloons into a comotose condition, breaking glassware and practicing fancy shots, they remounted their horses and rode through the town wildly shooting at the clouds.

A posse of citizens was formed, and a mile or two out of town they overtook the hilarious cowboys, killing one of them and wounding several.

The pursuit and killing aroused indignation throughout the territory. The cowboys had done no real or serious damage, according to Arizona ethics, and accordingly they should have been allowed to go their way unmolested. Besides, they had wasted all their ammunition and they had not a fair chance. Such was the general verdict of the affair.

The day after the killing Capt. Dick rode into the town, galloped straight to the Mayor's office and dismounted. He left it with a folded piece of paper tucked in his belt. It bore the Mayor's signature promising to raise a certain amount of money for the families of the dead cowboys.

Two days later came a letter from Capt. Dick to the town officials. It demanded an apology to the cowboys signed by the mayor and all the dignitaries of the town, with the money, or there would be some carefully-aimed shooting from the cowboys. and it was promised that the townspeople would be at the wrong end of the guns this time.

The money and apology, carefully worded, besprinkled with seals and duly signed by leading citizens and officials, was hastily despatched to Capt. Dick. The cowboys were satisfied with the apology and so the matter ended.

When this same Capt Dick was stricken with typhoid fever it was Jack who nursed him through the dangerous illness, and after that "Boy," which was the captain's name for the youth, usually rode by the captain's side.

A year passed before the real identity of "Boy," or "Nurse Jack," was discovered. It all came through the teacher in the country school asking Jack to buy her some ribbon. It was late in the afternoon when Jack reached Williams, the nearest town. He was in a hurry, and the startled customers in the dry goods store hastily made way for a sun-browned cowboy on a horse, who rode straight up to the goods counter and demanded three yards of pink ribbon. It is perfectly proper for a cowboy to ride his horse in an Arizona saloon, but when it comes to a dry goods store it is a questionable procedure.

While the clerk was hastily measuring off the ribbon a lady customer came too close to the horse's hoofs and was knocked unconscious.

The constable and several deputies proved too many for Jack, and he was straightway marched to jail. Capt. Dick came to town as soon as he heard of the affair. He called on "Boy" at the jail and to his surprise was shown the woman's ward. "Jack" had been forced to reveal her sex or be put in the men's quarters.

During the three days before the trial Capt. Dick became accustomed to "Boy" in her new guise. She told him her story, how her father had been hanged; how her mother and little sisters had taken refuge with relatives in Portland, and she herself had changed her name from Helen Jackson to Jack Hall and remained in Arizona to live the life of a cowboy.

On the day of the trial the injured woman had recovered from her blow and refused to prosecute. However, the judge was called upon to use his official powers in the crowded courtroom, and Capt. Dick and "Boy" were made husband and wife.

The story was soon known all over the territory.

Not only the cowboys on that particlar range, but from far and wide the vaqueros have sent congratulations and gifts. "Nurse Jack's" wedding gifts will always remind her of her year of cowboy life—riding whips, Mexican saddles and silver spurs, to say nothing of several pairs of splendid riding boots and a dozen sombreros.

Capt. Dick Wells is going to take his wife to Portland to visit her family. Then they will return to the stirrup and Arizona, which means home to them.

The cowboys have promised not to call her Mrs. Wells. She wants to be "Nurse Jack" to them.

And Capt. Dick says he will always be "Boy" to him.—San Francisco Call.

A MATCHMAKER

"Do tell me, old fellow, how on earth it is possible for such a metamorphosis to have taken place. Not a month ago we sat here, two hardened bachelors, determined to remain so to the end of our days, and now I find you transformed into a most devoted husband."

A hearty laugh was the immediate answer to this outburst, and Dr. Trenton, to whom it was addressed, took a puff at his pipe before replying.

"Well, you see, Jim," he said, "I thought it would be fun to surprise you thoroughly for once. But Delia shall tell you the story, and you may be surprised to learn that you yourself, unconsciously, I admit, made up the match."

"I suppose it is for penance, Will, that I am to narrate my own mistakes and misdeeds to Mr. Allison. Two months ago I was a stupid little country girl. My eldest brother had sent for me to keep his house. Our parents have been dead many years and I had lived with an aunt. Henry, my brother, had written me that it would be impossible for him to meet me at the depot, and that I should drive to the Tudor Flats, where he was living on the fourth floor. My poor brain was certainly in a whirl after my long drive through the noisy streets. When I arrived at the Tudor Flats, I walked bravely up the stairs.

"I know you will laugh at me dreadfully, Mr. Allison, but you must remember that I had never before seen so many stairs. In my ignorance I was unaware that the entresol does not count; therefore, when I arrived at a landing there a door was ajar and an old man servant replying to an inquirer that the doctor would not be home until 2 o'clock, I naturally concluded that I had reached my journey's end, for my brother also bears the title doctor. To old James's astonishment I walked calmly in, saying:

" 'The doctor expects me. Please have my luggage seen to.'

" 'But Miss, I don't know,' he ventured. 'I have the strictest orders never to allow any one to enter my master's study during his absence.'

" 'I am the doctor's sister and he himself arranged my coming,' I answered, condescendingly.

"With that he admitted me, muttering, 'Never heard about a sister,' into the smoky, dusty apartments, which I assumed to be my brother's.

"Much to James's consternation, I set to work and dusted the furniture and books, spread a clean cloth on the table and prepared a lunch (though James informed me 'Master never eats at home') of fresh butter, home-made bread, cheese, ham and apples; then decorated the room with roses and honeysuckle brought from home.

"To pass away the time I took up a book and began to read. A note fell out of this book. My eyes fell on the first words and my attention was instantly attracted. It was signed Chas. Allison, and read:

" 'Dear Old Man—So you have decided to install that awful creature in your house, though you acknowledge that all hopes of peace and comfort of your life will be gone. My dear fellow, do be advised and give up this preposterous idea. At any rate, don't be surprised if I cut your acquaintance for the present and leave you to enjoy the company of Delia. Your friend,

" 'Charlie Allison.' "

"My dear lady," interrupted Charlie, "you don't mean to say it isn't possible that any misunderstanding arose out of that? My dislike and"——

"I do mean to say so," she replied, laughing. "It was quite possible—indeed, natural—I should assume that those words referred to me. I was at first highly indignant, and then began to cry. My resolution was soon formed. I would go away at once and not ever see the heartless brother who had discussed me in such a manner before my arrival.

"While repacking my bag I came upon a photograph of myself. A sudden impulse made me write a few words on the back of it and leave it on the table. Then I heard steps outside.. It was Henry, I thought. He should not find me there. Seeing the door of a small room open, I slipped in and closed it behind me."

"Let me tell the rest," interrupted the doctor: "I fancied I was dreaming as I became aware of the invitingly-spread table; then I noted two covers laid as if for a delightful tete-a-tete, and upon my napkin a photograph of the sweetest face I had ever seen. Listen to what was written under it:

" 'As I am so ugly; as I destroy your peace, and drive away your friends, I leave you to lunch alone and shall find a home elsewhere.'

"While puzzling about what this might mean, I heard a terrific yell from Delia, my parrot; I opened the storeroom door and Delia, my wife, fell into my arms.

"After explanations had been made I restored her to brother Henry as housekeeper, but claimed her in five weeks for my own. Now do you believe that you are a matchmaker?"—Boston Post.

An Inside Neck Band.

Nothing that has ever yet been produced in the way of summer footwear for men will begin to compare for comfort, coolness and durability with shoes made of tan vici kid. If you have never tried shoes made of this material, ask any man who has worn them and you will find him enthusiastic in their praise. But it is possible to have too much of a good thing and we find ourselves overstocked with certain lines of tan vici shoes So in order to reduce the surplus, we have cut some fifty pairs of the $3 50, $3.00 and $2.75 grades down to $2.48. You can see the samples of these in our north window the rest of this week and if you are going to need another pair of shoes this summer it will be worth your while to stop and take a look at these. DYSPEPSIA

"My wife suffered for many years from Nervous Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Sleeplessness and Nervous Debility" writes John Kelloes, Philadelphia. "We tried many physicians and numerous remedies, but with no results, until I heard of Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure. We bought six boxes, and the results far surpassed our expectations. She now eats and sleeps well, is gaining in flesh, and her color, which had got to be yellow and sickly, is now as fresh as when we were first married, and I tell her that Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure has made her ten years younger."

WINE OF CARDUI
Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.
I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.
MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it. They know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

Mr. Charles C. Weaver, who is well and favorably known in Greensboro, has been employed to fill the chair of English in Rutherford College, which will be opened next fall under the auspices of the Western North Carolina Conference of the M. E. Church South He is well fitted for the position, having made the study of English and history a specialty. He graduated from Trinity College a few years ago, since which time he has been pursuing a post graduate course in Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. On the 22nd inst. he will receive the degree of Ph. D.

Mr. Weaver is a son of Rev. Dr. J. H. Weaver, a former pastor of West Market Street church, in this city. He is a very bright young man.

No Use for a Mirror Now

Wilmington Star.

A young negro on a railroad track near New Orleans a few days ago, was so intently occupied in admiring himself in a mirror, that he paid no attention to a train lumbering along in his direction, and now he has no use for a mirror.

Bold Bob and Bad Butler.

Wilmington Messenger.

Wilmington folks have heard Captain Bob Glenn in a campaign. He is a rouser. It was he who fairly peeled and flayed bad Butler in the campaign of 1898.

Women in Persia.

Life is sad in Persia, especially the woman's life. The law of Islam allows each man to have four wives, and as many concubines and slave girls as his hand can hold. His wives, also, he may divorce at will. Our word "bosh" is the Turkish word by which a Moslem divorces his wife. It doesn't count if he says it only once or twice, but if said the third time the woman must go. Down along the Caspian the men often marry their wives in the Spring, so as to have the benefit of their labor in the rice fields, and divorce them in the Fall, so as to escape supporting them during the Winter. At Meshed, where the pilgrims come, is a large population of temporary wives who are married to the pilgrims, far from home and families, for as long a time as the pilgrims remain at the shrine—a day, or a month. The Mohammedan priests draw up the contracts for these temporary alliances. Lord Curzon, who has been there, says Meshed, though the holiest city in Persia is the wickedest in Asia. There are no words for wife and home in Persian, for there are no homes and few wives. It is curious to hear a handsome woman say: "I have told my husband if he marries another wife I shall poison him, and I intend to do it." Or to ask a woman about her home life and get the answer: "Love my husband! Oh, yes, I love him. I love him as much as a sieve holds water."

Home Made Candies.

Chocolate Caramels.—One teacupful of milk, one of sugar, one tablespoonful butter, one-half teacupful grated chocolate. Mix the ingredients and put on the fire in a lined saucepan; stir constantly to prevent burning; boil till quite thick; turn on to buttered plates; when it begins to stiffen mark into squares with a knife.

Cocoanut Candy.—One pound loaf sugar, one cupful water, one-fourth pound grated cocoanut. Put the sugar and water in a saucepan till the sugar is dissolved, and set it on a clear fire to boil for five minutes or more; as the scum rises carefully, skim it away till the sugar looks white and thick, then stir in the cocoanut; set it on the fire and stir constantly with a wooden spoon till it rises well in the saucepan, then at once spread it out on sheets of writing paper, which should be slightly warmed.

Almond Toffee.—One-half pound butter, one pound brown sugar, one and one-half ounces almonds, a little grated lemon rind. Put the butter into a saucepan over a clear fire, and when melted add the sugar; boil for fifteen minutes, add a little grated lemon rind and the almonds blanched and halved; boil and stir till a little of the mixture dropped in cold water hardens immediately; pour on to buttered dishes and stand aside to cool.

Made It Warm for Him.

The young man, making a social call, found himself in a pleasant sitting room, surrounded by a bevy of dear, delightful creatures, who proceeded to assist the base burner to make it warm for him

In fact it was altogether too warm for the young man.

"This is the hottest room I ever got into," he exclaimed at last, as he wiped the perspiration from his brow. "It really makes me sick. I'm afraid I'll have to throw up—" —"the window," he went on.—Memphis Scimitar.

"Wha-a-t?"

Spreading Happiness.

"I have but one rule that I follow absolutely in this life, and that is to make other people as happy as possible."

"Well," she replied, "you ought to be gratified, then, at what I heard a young lady say the other day."

"What was that?"

"She said that whenever she saw you dance she had to laugh."—Chicago Times-Herald.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

QUART BOTTLES.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. C. W. Jennings will give a reception this evening to twenty young ladies from the State Normal and Industrial College.

No special invitations have been issued to the bankers' reception tonight. It will be an informal affair, and the business public is cordially invited.

There will be a meeting of Paisley Encampment No. 10 tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. In addition to work in the first degree, there will be an election of officers and a representative to the Grand Encampment.

For some reason, unknown, there are more runaways, loose horses, and smashups in Greensboro than in any other town in the universe. There was one this morning in the usual line. A horse harnessed to a buggy, and hitched to a bicycle rack in front of the Elite restaurant, to which the horse belonged, ran with the rack dangling at his feet. He was stopped in front of West Market street church, after having run into several vehicles and tore the buggy and harness to pieces and crippled one or two bicycles.

Will Play Patriotic Airs at The Normal.

The Gate City Band has been engaged to furnish music for the commencement at the State Normal and Industrial College next week. The Normal always has the best of everything going, and hence the Gate City Band was secured Some special music has been ordered for the occasion.

On Trial for His Life.

Dave Allen, colored, was arraigned in court this morning for burglary and put on trial for his life. He is charged with entering and burglarizing a sleeping room at Fields' distillery, south of town, last September.

A jury was secured by 11 o'clock, when the hearing of evidence was begun. There are a number of witnesses.

Important Notice.

Owing to threatening weather, the Light Bearers have been compelled to postpone their lawn party until tomorrow, Friday, evening, when they will hold it either on Dr. Crawford's lawn, or at the Banner Warehouse if the weather should prove unfavorable for an out-of-door entertainment. Their friends will please note this change, and give the young folks a good attendance tomorrow evening.
